America's Farmers Again Called On For All-Out Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—War Food Administrator Marvin Jones called anew on the nation's farmers for all-out food and feed production this year as he announced final agricultural production goals for 1945.

These goals represent the total of state goals recommended by farmers, farm leaders and state agriculture officials and are approximately the same as were recommended by the WFA last November 15.

This year's crop acreage goal totaled 363,635,000 acres, nearly three percent more than the 1944 planted acreage and a little more than the 363,616,000 acres suggested by the WFA.

Goals for flaxseed, sugar beets and clover crop seeds were increased substantially over 1944 while moderate increases were decided upon for acreages for dry beans, potatoes and tobacco. Legume hay seeds and soybean acreages will be maintained at the record 1944 levels, Jones said.

The WFA called for a larger slaughter of cattle to meet increased military and civilian demands. The cattle and calf slaughter suggested by the WFA was 35,000,000 head, an increase over the 33,900,000 in 1944. Slaughter goals were not established on a state basis.

State recommendations called for an increase in the goal for spring pigs from 55,925,000 in 1944 to 57,563,000. Farmers were urged to keep more sows for spring farrowing to help meet the goal. The number of sows to farrow in the spring was set at 9,569,000 compared with WFA suggestions of 9,429,000.

WFA has announced extension of the price support period on hogs to March 31, 1946, to cover the period when the spring pigs of 1945 will be marketed.

The national wheat goal was set at 67,731,000 acres. This compares with 65,454,000 acres planted for harvest in 1944. The corn goal was fixed at 99,096,000 acres, compared with 98,722,000 acres planted in 1944.

Increased milk production is called for in the final national goals. The final state-recommended output for 1945 was 129,582,000,000 pounds, 582,000,000 more than WFA recommended and above the estimated 1944 production of 119,200,000 pounds.

WFA said that because of recent changes in needs, the 1945

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Pity the poor guy or gal who used to have cigarettes to sell. I imagine they get about as fed up with saying, "No, we have no cigarettes today" as you do with asking "got any cigarettes today?"

And, if they answer a bit testily, just remember they're probably worn out repeating the same old story. They probably weren't so edgy about it earlier in the day. They're a right nice lot, by and large, but you know there are limits to human patience. So take it easy and smile when you ask the aggravating question.

Sure, they all have their old friends they try to take care of. You can hardly blame them for it either. They almost have been forced to it by the people who never were in their stores before, making the rounds.

I just hope none of them will be driven to the desperation that finally overcame Thomas Blades, Jr., a 27-year-old clerk in a Butler, Ky., store. He pulled a gun from beneath the counter and shot himself fatally when a customer asked for a pack of cigarettes. Of course, he might have turned the gun on the customer first had he not been the sort of man who could understand the persistence of the cigarette smoker. The coroner just called it suicide . . . he might have added that he was a war casualty.

Every time I see those sharp corners rounded off at various street intersections, where the sidewalks formerly came up almost to a sharp point, I recall that Judge Rell G. Allen, while he was mayor of the old town quite a number of years ago, had the work done.

As a result of his foresight, a great many automobile mishaps have been prevented, due to easing the intersections by increasing the width from corner to corner anywhere from six to 12 feet.

By rounding the corners it has been possible for traffic to make much safer turns and give clearance for other traffic.

And I also recall that it was Rell who forced gasoline service stations to remove their pumps from along the sidewalks or near the curbs so that the walks would not be blocked by traffic while taking on gas and air. It made some of the service station men pretty sore at the time, but the public applauded the good move.

ARMY HANDS BACK CLEVELAND PLANTS

Threat to War Production by Strike Is Over

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. operated under private management today after the army relinquished control of the facilities it seized last Saturday when a strike by members of the CIO Utility Workers Organizing Committee curtailed light and power in a five-county area.

Col. E. A. Lynn, Cleveland ordinance district chief who was officer-in-charge during the occupation, announced return of the properties late yesterday afternoon and said "assurances were given of fullest cooperation of management and labor that there would be uninterrupted production of electric power and steam."

The Regional War Labor Board attributed immediate cause of the walkout of 400 coal passers and maintenance men last Friday to refusal of a union plant steward to accept a change from day to night work, but union representatives later presented a list of demands at company-union conferences.

Yanks Advance Cautiously as Japs Snipe at Doughboys from Hills on Flanks - Carrier Planes Which Smashed Convoy In China Sea Bomb and Strafe 350 Miles of Coast

(By the Associated Press)

Sixth Army motorized columns are rolling down a provincial road within 98 miles—80 miles airline—of Manila against no more opposition than an occasional sniper but other Yank forces are in a foot-by-foot fight with hill-trenched Japanese on the extreme northeast flank defending the vital Manila north road.

Tokyo radio, which is hinting strongly that Philippines reverses are leading to the ouster of Premier Kuniaki Koiso, quoted an imperial headquarters communication as acknowledging that "the enemy is gradually closing in on our forces on the central plains of Luzon."

Planes Smash Jap Ships

Meanwhile, free-ranging American carrier planes, fresh from knocking out 69 Japanese ships off Indo-China, bombed and strafed 350 miles of the south China coast in quest of remnants of the Japanese fleet or troop convoys destined for the Philippines.

Hongkong, Swatow and Amoy were raided Sunday (China time) by Third Fleet air forces which may have continued the attack into a second day. In announcing the strike Monday night Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said no details were available, but Associated Press war correspondent Rembert James reported from the carrier flagship that pilots found a lot of "fat shipping" in the harbors.

For the first time Nimitz disclosed full effects of the Indo-China strike two days previously—41 Jap ships sunk, 28 damaged, 112 planes destroyed, and oil refineries and storage tanks destroyed.

Guide Set Up for Increased Draft - Administration Criticized For 'Executive Directives'—Merchant Fleet Becomes a Problem for United States and Some Ships May Be Transferred to Other Countries

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The War Manpower Commission today divided its list of 35 essential activities into two general divisions, labeling one "critical". The breakdown was issued as a guide to Selective Service in drafting men 26 through 29.

In line with the directive of War Mobilization Director Byrnes, registrants in work on this top-priority list will be held on their jobs as long as possible to prevent disruption of war production.

Those at work in activities making up the balance of the list will

ABSTINENCE PLEDGE BY SOLONS SOUGHT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Rep. Gus Kasch of Akron undertook today to stop drinking and cigarette smoking among his colleagues in the Ohio Legislature.

He proposed the legislators enact the following laws:

Requiring each member to take an oath that he had abstained from the use of intoxicating liquors for a year and that he would continue to abstain during his term, and Prohibiting the members from smoking cigarettes.

Kasch, who is in his 70's, has introduced more bills than any other legislator, but never has had one enacted into law.

FEWER CIVILIAN SHOES

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Manufacture of leather shoes for civilian consumption will be cut by 55,000 pairs in 1945, says W. W. Stephenson, vice president of the National Shoe Manufacturers Association.

Stephenson said that the industry would be the first called to meet the quota for some 200,000 men of this age group by July 1.

All jobs in seven general categories were designated as critical. These are: Production of aircraft and parts; production of ships, boats and parts; production of ordnance and accessories; production of ammunition; production of metal shapes and forgings for essential products; production of machinery; and production of essential rubber products.

Except for scrap salvage, all jobs in smelting, refining and rolling of metals were listed as critical. In the transportation services, coal mining and petroleum classifications, most jobs were rated as critical.

The job listings were issued as

Aid For Chiang Kai-Shek Approved Because, Observer Says, He Is China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The position of Chiang Kai-Shek is weak in many respects, but he remains the only leader with sufficient prestige to carry China through the war, Rep. Mansfield (D-Mont) said today.

Reporting to the House on his trip to India, Burma and China last November and December as a special observer for President Roosevelt, Mansfield added:

"We are committed to Chiang Kai-Shek and we will help him to the best of our ability. The decision, though, rests not on our shoulders but on the generalissimo. He and he alone can untangle the present situation, because on the basis of what he has done and in spite of some of the things he has done, he is China."

Among Chiang Kai-Shek's acts which had "disastrous results," the Montanan said he found the following:

SHATTERING the enemy's Warsaw-Krakow defense line in Poland, Russia's long-awaited winter offensive mounted in its fury as a Red Army of more than 1,000,000 men crossed the Nida river on a 37-mile front, driving to within 32 miles of Krakow, gateway to rich German Silesia and northern Czechoslovakia. Soviet armies were reported by Berlin to have begun fresh major attacks north and south of Warsaw with the double aim of encircling that charred Polish capital and breaking through to the mouth of the Vistula river in Danzig. The entire eastern front from the Baltic to Budapest appeared to be exploding into action.

STATE'S STOCK OF BRANDY IS HEADACHE NOW

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Liquor Department is not overstocked with brandy, retiring Liquor Director Don A. Fisher asserted today in reply to Gov. Frank J. Lausche's observations on inventories in his address to a joint session of the legislature last night.

Lausche said of a 20-million-dollar Liquor Department inventory last January 1, $8,793,184 was Portuguese brandy and rum.

The governor cited an order for 65,000 cases of Victoria brandy in 1943 and said of 58,277 cases delivered, only 2,253 cases had been sold, 111 of that number during last year's peak month of December. He said 5,075 cases now were awaiting delivery and added that he intended to ask the attorney general if remaining cases could be refused.

INVITATIONS ARE MAILED FOR FDR'S INAUGURATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The White House announced today that invitations have gone out for President Roosevelt's inauguration ceremony Saturday.

The president estimates the ceremony, scheduled for noon, will take no longer than 20 minutes, Secretary Stephen Early said.

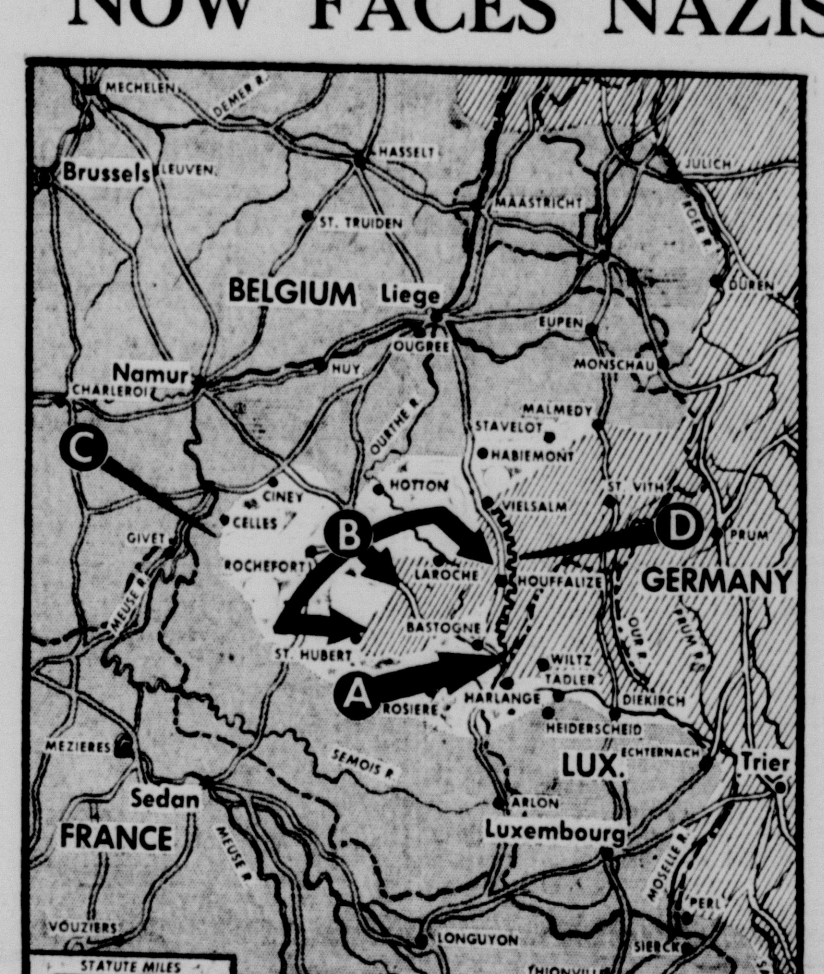

Official guests are expected to number no more than 5,000.

GI'S GET HARD LABOR FOR BLACK MARKETING

PARIS, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Three American soldiers were sentenced to long terms at hard labor today on charges of making black market profits from the sale of cigarettes and chocolate found for the western front.

The convictions brought to 18 the number of enlisted men of the 716th Railway Battalion convicted of conspiring to steal the rations from front-bound Army supplies.

WAR ON TWO SIDES NOW FACES NAZIS

THREATENING TO CAVE IN the Nazi front in Luxembourg, a surprise attack (A) by Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army sent thousands of Germans fleeing into the woods, while in Belgium the enemy began a 23-mile withdrawal that turned loose British patrols on a 10-mile eastward sweep. The United States First and Ninth Armies with the British Second Army are closing in from the north and west (B). Though at the peak of the Nazi counteroffensive, the enemy had reached as far west as Colles (C) on the road to Namur, the Germans are now reported hastily withdrawing to a defense line (D) behind the Ourthe river.

More Money For Local Governments From State Recommended By Lausche

By E. E. EASTERLY

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Republican leaders of the Ohio Legislature joined their Democratic fellows today in lauding Gov. Frank J. Lausche's message, which requested that partisanship be submerged in administration of the state government.

They were rather cagey in their plaudits, however.

"A fine speech," was their general observation on last night's outline by the state executive head, "but we want more time to digest it."

The new Democratic governor pointed the direction which he thought the legislature should travel and promised his cooperation. The extent to which it follows is up to the Republicans, who have a controlling majority.

Lausche reminded the senators and representatives that the legislative and executive are independent branches of government, but advised:

" . . . It should be our sole purpose to fulfill our obligations to our state and to perform the responsibilities resting upon us for the common good of all our citizenry."

He added:

"You and I are representatives of all the people. It does not follow that because our political support came mainly from one segment of the population, that we do not owe equal fidelity and service to every other segment."

In charting a course for the next two years, Lausche recommended that $46,000,000 of the $92,000,000 surplus be set aside for future emergencies; that $28,000,000 be earmarked for welfare institution improvements, to be undertaken when employment slacks off in war and private industries, and that $18,000,000 be laid aside for conservation, establishment of state parks and protection of shore lines.

None of the surplus, he asserted,

14 Known Dead in Fire That Hits Chicago Hotel

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A fast moving, spectacular fire early today attacked the seven story General Clark Hotel in North Clark Street killing at least 14 persons and injuring five others.

Six hours after the conflagration was discovered firemen continued to search the ruins for bodies of additional persons possibly trapped in the 40 year old stone and frame constructed building.

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said 13 bodies were found in the wrecked hotel while one woman was fatally injured when she missed a fireman's net in a jump from a third floor window. Only one of the 14 victims was identified. He was Joseph Feilen, about 61.

Scores of persons in the hotel, which contained 75 rooms, were rescued or fled to the streets on fire escapes. Several leaped to firemen's nets while others were carried down ladders by firemen.

Flames and billowing smoke attracted thousands to the fire and 33 pieces of equipment responded to extra alarm calls. The fire was discovered about midnight and was not brought under control until after 3 A. M. Its origin was not determined immediately but an investigation was underway.

BELGIAN BULGE SHRINKS UNDER ALLIED ATTACK

One of Numerous New Red Drives Stab Across Border Into Prussia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

(By the Associated Press)

The Germans, squeezed in a giant nutcracker between the Russians in the east and the Allies in the west, reeled under new heavy military blows today as Prime Minister Churchill announced to Commons that "the war will be prolonged until unconditional surrender has been obtained."

The Nazi high command announced the fall of Schlossberg, 13 miles inside East Prussia, as Russian troops ripped German defenses along 600 miles of the eastern front, and menaced one of Warsaw's main rear communications lines. The Germans also said that the Russians made "major penetrations" in the Vistula-Bug triangle north of Warsaw and from Narw bridgeheads south of East Prussia, and declared that the winter offensive was intended by Marshal Stalin to be the decisive battle of the war.

Still another Red army offensive exploded in southern Poland, Berlin said, as Russian troops were reported pounding through village after village in their huge winter offensive, which swelled along the east front in ten or more key sectors, according to Nazi reports, from the Baltic to Yugoslavia.

More than 600 U. S. heavy bombers swept into eastern Germany and hammered a Krupp tank factory at Madgeburg, an oil plant 70 miles south of Berlin, and rail yards as Dresden and Dessau with 2,000 tons of bombs today.

First reports said they met no fighter opposition. The weather was bad. All four targets were within half an hour's flying time of Berlin.

In the west, U. S. First and Third armies, rejoined on a solid front, pressed the Germans steadily from what remained of their Belgian bulge, and further south the Third lashed out with a new thrust five miles into the Reich up the east bank of the Moselle River. Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's drive here took three towns yesterday, one of them five miles inside Germany east of the Luxembourg frontier.

The road center of Houffalize in the center of the Belgian bulge fell to the U. S. First Army today while to the north, the British Second Army attacked north of Sittard in the triangle between the Maas and the Roer rivers.

Houffalize fell without a fight to the "Hell on Wheels" Second Armored Division of the First Army.

The First and Third armies between them cleared the Germans from a large but loosely held area north and west of the road center, which has been the pivot of the German defense line.

Only the barest detail was given of the British attack. Sittard is in the narrow appendix of Holland between Germany and Belgium. It is 10 miles west of Allied held Geilenkirchen in Germany and 14 miles south of Roermond, where the Roer River flows into the Maas.

Until recently, the British army had units at the western end of the flattening bulge. Probably only a fraction of its nine or more divisions were involved for it took only 613 prisoners.

The first Army of Lt. Gen. Courtney Y.H. Hodges also captured

Voluntary Rationing Of Cigarets Proposed

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Cigarettes will be available at the rate of about 15 daily to civilians under a voluntary rationing system planned by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors. The association estimated the average daily civilian consumption last year was slightly more than 17 cigarettes.

The association, with a membership of 2,800 which controls distribution of cigarettes to the country's 1,250,000 retail outlets, said last night a card system of issuing ration cards will be inaugurated within two weeks. The plan, designed to achieve orderly allotment, would mark the first time an industry attempted to ration in wartime a scarce commodity.

Numbered ration cards will be issued by retailers to consumers who will be required to sign a declaration that they have not obtained cards elsewhere. The rationing will not be attempted at outlets for transient trade—hotels, railroad and bus stations—or at chain stores. About 13 percent of available cigarettes are sold at these places, the association estimated.

There is no immediate prospect for any "substantial" improvement in supplies this year, the association said, stating that in 1944 33 million packs of tax paid cigarettes were produced daily for domestic consumption.

THE WAR TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

A truce finally has halted (or at least tempered) the clash at arms between the Greek Leftist insurgents and British troops, but we can hardly expect this to end such a violent eruption, especially since Greece is politically volcanic by nature—and has become one of the hottest of the international hot-spots.

The Allies will breathe easier with even temporary cessation of a politico-military imbroglio which has stirred the emotions of the United Nations deeply. It even has produced a divergence of views among the Big Three.

Opponents of British Prime Minister Churchill's intervention with arms—and he has encountered strong opposition at home—have charged that England is playing power politics and is violating the principle of self-determination. Mr. Churchill has replied that he is trying to help Greece, that Britain will resist any attempt to "impose by violence a Communist dictatorship" in the little Balkan state, and that the Greeks will be permitted to choose their own form of government.

It's highly significant of the trend of the times that rarely has the man-in-the-street in Allied countries been so wrought up over the affairs of a little country. You hear it discussed everywhere. I spoke before a big crowd of enlisted men at Mitchell Field, outside New York, a few days ago and one of the things they demanded to know about was the Greek affair.

This means, I take it, that "self-determination," which was just a phrase to the average person in the last war, has come to have real meaning.

The next big step in the Greek affair—provided the lid can be kept on the fighting—presumably will be the holding of a post-war plebiscite to determine whether Greece is to retain the monarchy or adopt some other form of government. It looks like a red sunset for the throne.

King George of Greece, who recently agreed to a regency pending the plebiscite, presumably will have the strong blessings of London. He is credited with being Anglophile, and it's essential that Greece remain within Britain's sphere of influence if John Bull is to retain his control of the Mediterranean, the Middle East and the Suez Canal, which gives him quick access to his dominions in the Far East.

Still, George's record of service to his country will be the determining factor. He came to the throne in 1922 and quit the country fifteen months later as the result of the revolution which produced a republic. During his absence of twelve years his mother-in-law, the late Queen Marie of Romania, did her best to restore him to the throne.

At that time a friend of mine who was a great Balkan expert was consulted by the Queen, who wanted to know how she could turn the trick. He replied in substance: "If George would buckle on a sword and ride his charger through the heart of Athens, the people would acclaim him and put him back on the throne. But George won't do it."

Queen Marie agreed with this appraisal.

In 1935 the Greeks recalled George by plebiscite. Within a few months the late General (Little John) Metaxas, minister of war, established himself as the real ruler of Greece. On his advice George dissolved Parliament. All political parties were abolished and the constitutional rights of the people were suspended. Metaxas became dictator—one of the toughest Europe has seen—and set out to establish a totalitarian state like Italy. Greece was an unhappy place as I know from personal experience in that country at the time.

That was the position when the

COUNTY-WIDE DOG CHECK-UP TO START SOON

New System To Be Used To Bring Untagged Dogs To Light

With approach of the deadline for obtaining dog tags without $1 penalty being added, after January 20, County Dog Warden Otis Bonecutter is making plans for looking after the "stragglers" that may result in a great many more than some 2600 licenses issued in the county last year.

A check at the office of County Auditor Ulric T. Acton, Tuesday morning, showed that there were 1394 licenses issued up to that time, which means that over 1200 dog owners must obtain tags for Towser before the close of business January 20 or pay the additional $1 penalty.

Soon after the time-limit expires, Warden Bonecutter will start checking for strays, and he has an entirely new system that may bring results.

For instance he has tabulated the dog owners in Washington C. H. and has found that 700 dogs are listed, although there are around 2,000 homes in the city.

Bonecutter has found that on some streets known to have dogs, not a single dog is listed, and the check-up is expected to bring to light many dogs that were not listed last year.

The law provides for prosecution of dog owners who harbor dogs that are not licensed, and who do not keep their dogs on their own premises.

Bonecutter has also checked the number of licenses purchased in each township, and checked them against the number of farms (most farms have at least one dog) greatly exceeds the number of dogs.

Following is a list of what the townships show:

County	Number Dogs	Number Farms
Union	257	292
Jefferson	253	280
Paint	173	184
Wayne	144	162
Jasper	127	153
Madison	111	135
Marion	100	127
Perry	80	142
Concord	64	94
Green	60	91

As this will be a great year for Victory gardens, officials are planning to reduce the stray dog nuisance to a minimum, and require dog owners in municipalities to keep their dogs where they will not be damaging neighbor's Victory gardens.

METER COLLECTION $232.57 LAST WEEK

Cold and Ice Cause Much Meter Trouble

One collection was made from the parking meters last week, and this netted $232.57.

The collections have been far down the line compared with normal, since the bad weather started.

During the icy weather Police-Harmon Welty, official checker of the meters, has had much trouble with some of them, where coins would stick and the meters would not work properly.

Adjustments were made so that the meters would work properly during cold weather.

LUZON DRIVE SLOWED BY JAPS IN HILLS BUT PLANES ATTACK CHINA

stroyed or set afire. Enemy ships sunk or damaged included two entire convoys bound for invaded Luzon Island in the Philippines.

Manila Road Captured

On Luzon, the deepest penetration toward Manila reported today carried southbound Doughboys out of Pangasinan, in Tarlac province where they captured the highway junctions of Camling. That is an overall gain of 30 miles. From Camling a lateral road runs 11 miles east to Paniqui on the Manila north road.

That strategic highway, No. 3, which more and more will figure in the Luzon campaign, links Manila with the summer capital of Baguio. Japanese forces in the Baguio area northeast of the expanding American beachheads at Lingayen Gulf must hold the road as the last good connection between them and other forces of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita trying to struggle up bomb-cut roads from the Manila sector under constant aerial attack.

One Yank force has reached the Manila north road by driving to Urdaneta, 27 miles east, and slightly south, of Lingayen town.

But the first determined enemy stand is being made much nearer Baguio against Sixth Army units striving to push east from coastal Damortis to Rosario.

Sunday and Monday, while the Americans inched through underbrush, American warships in Lingayen Gulf and field artillery on shore blasted into the enemy positions. These attacks silenced Japanese field artillery but whenever the Yanks tried to get back on the road they were greeted with fire from knee mortars, machineguns and rifles.

Carrier planes of the U. S. Seventh Fleet are ripping apart enemy strongpoints in the foothills with rockets as the slow advance continues.

Some insects, such as the aphids, have the ability to complete a generation in a week or less.

Coincidence Anyway!

Duane Denney Rescues T-Sgt. Lewis Wyatt from Torpedoed Ship, Not His Brother John

It wasn't Sgt. John Wyatt who Duane Denney, PO 3-c, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark E. Denney, 220 North Fayette Street, rescued when a torpedo struck a U. S. ship in the seas around the Philippines.

But it's a coincidence just the same, for it was John Wyatt's brother, T-Sgt. Lewis Wyatt, son of Mrs. Sarah Wyatt, 325 Fifth Street, who was rescued.

with his father before he entered the service. While Sgt. Wyatt was in India he was married and his wife and two children are in India now.

Just when or how the ship was torpedoed will not be known until Sgt. Wyatt gets back to Washington C. H. Denney included no details in his letter to his parents, presumably for security reasons. Mr. and Mrs. Denney believe he still is in the Philippine area. He has been on sea duty since June. Denney was employed in the circulation department of the Record-Herald when he entered the Navy.

T-Sgt. Lewis Wyatt now is in California on the last lap of his journey home after four years in the China-Burma-India theater of operations. Sgt. Wyatt is believed to be the only Fayette Countian who was a member of General Claire Chennault's famed Flying Tigers. His brother, Sgt. John Wyatt, a marine, is now in New Zealand, his mother believes.

Denney wrote his parents his destroyer helped rescue the men from the torpedoed ship and that one of them was Sgt. Wyatt, on his way to the states for a furlough.

Sgt. Lewis Wyatt has been in service six years. He attended Washington C. H. High School and was working as a mechanic

Today and Tomorrow

It might as well be accepted by everybody in this country, old or young, in public life or private life, that from now on nothing is going to be easy. The road of war victory winds up hill all the way, and it may be the same with the peace victory to follow. The American people are beginning now to get a real taste of hard facts.

There will be less, for a while, of nearly everything in the way of comforts and conveniences. We shall not go hungry or cold if things are administered wisely by those who have authority in such matters. But there will be little in the form of luxury, and that little will grow less.

This is a great and rich country, and it will still be so when the big war is over. It is rich in materials of nearly all kinds, useful for war or peace. It is richest in its men and women, and in its children.

The latter will do much of the work, when necessary, while the war proceeds, and will learn the lessons of patience and skill, courage and suffering that have to be learned, by which they themselves may carry on when the war is over. Bravely faced and intelligently pursued, these stern lessons of today will make a better and wiser tomorrow.

Postscript to Mush

A bulletin has just arrived from the northerner who waxed so rhapsodic the other day about the glories of corn meal mush. With fried mush and maple syrup, and maybe a bit of bacon or sausage, a man was practically omnipotent. Did he long for southern sun? Certainly not. He was a he-man. He ate snow and blizzards alive.

"Ten minutes after putting that ecstasy on paper," he writes, "I found out what it means to be snowbound in the midst of city conveniences. One car had a dead battery. The other, after I got the garage doors melted loose and the car shoveled out, developed a pain in the clutch and refused to take a step. Daughter got her car from a neighboring garage and got it hopelessly stuck at our door. The next-door neighbor got hers out to push, and stuck in her own drive. The oil-burner inspector came with chains on his car and managed to get in and out and give the milkman a shove out of an icy hole.

"For the first time in twenty years we couldn't get to the postoffice. Taxi? No hope. Groceries? Open a can. Would I go to Florida or Mississippi or Louisiana or Texas or California or Tacoma, Wash., or Ketchikan, Alaska? All I'd need would be gas and an open road. I hear it's nice and warm in Ketchikan. Gosh, my back hurts from shoveling that lovely snow. Would I be a summer-sissy? Dunt esk!"

"On V-Day we'll be working—full time, full speed. There aren't going to be any parties. Our men aren't going to spike the switches and get together for any whoopee! There won't be any empty desks in our office, or freight trains standing idle in our yards. We ask you not to ride our trains that day to go celebrating.

'Heart Attacks'—Dreaded Words

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"HEART attacks," "angina pectoris"—these terms bring a dread connotation to the average person. One's morning paper seldom lacks the account of a person in the full surge of activity who suddenly passed away with a heart attack. Of course, "heart attack" is used quite indiscriminately nowadays; anyone who passes away suddenly has had a "heart attack." It may not be his heart at all. But the fear remains.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Anginal Attacks

This picture so strongly implanted in the public mind takes no account of the thousands of men and women who have anginal attacks and have had them for years and who go about their business pretty generally enjoying themselves, with no fear of any impending calamity. It all depends upon the point of view.

I know plenty of them who should by all the rules have been dead long ago. But there they go bustling about busily getting 6% when lots of healthier people are only getting 4.

Methods of Treatment

For the man or woman who has just had the first anginal attack the outlook looks a good deal blacker than need be. I find in a recent treatise that there are 68 methods of treatment of angina that have been used at a certain American hospital and nearly 30 per cent of all the patients responded strikingly to one or more of these forms of treatment. So much so that they have been going about their business for years without any discomfort or disability. Nearly 40 per cent died moderately well, making seventy per cent of all such patients who are living out a pretty full schedule of activity and in enjoyment of their faculties and happiness of life.

The fellow who after his first attack of angina just decides to lie down and wait for death is really dying unnecessarily before his time.

It is possible to judge whether a patient with angina is responding to treatment by giving him an exercise test. There are several types of these. The general principle is to measure the amount of work which will induce an attack of angina. The test must be conducted under standard conditions. For instance, the temperature of the room must be the same, and the test must be given at least an hour after meal time. The exercise itself is not strenuous, consisting, in most forms, of walking up and down a few steps.

Those who show an increase in exercise tolerance under treatment of 100 per cent or more usually have complete or almost complete freedom from attacks in daily life. An increase of exercise tolerance of 30 to 75 per cent is usually associated with some improvement in number and intensity of the attacks.

Angina Cured

So people do get over angina, serious disease though it is. I would be the last to say that a patient afflicted with angina should plan a hard and strenuous program of life. But an attack does not mean that he is doomed to a sick room for the rest of his days. After all, the first doctor who ever described angina, William Heberden, had as his first patient an old man, part of whose cure was really graduated exercise, and he lived a long time.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. When one of my two children, 3 and 6, receives a gift we must match it as soon as possible for the other child. Otherwise, the second child is very unhappy. What should we do?

A. This is a very expensive and pernicious practice. There is no better way to make these children very selfish. Explain to them that from now on this practice will end, that each will have to wait until his own birthday, and that when one receives a gift the other can hope for one at some later time. When you buy gifts for both at the same time don't select identical gifts. Let the one have a cart, for example, and the other a wagon. Then they will soon discover it to their advantage to exchange playthings occasionally and to cooperate at play.

CORPSES AT INDIAN STONES by Philip Wylie

SYNOPSIS

How would you like to have been christened Agamemnon Telemachus Plum and—though now a learned doctor and professor, age 34—to be called: "AGGIE"? Even the Greeks might have no classic word for your answer. And to be under the personal social supervision of Aunt Sarah, jolly, sophisticated, and gossip? Well, Aggie and Aunt are now in the ancient and expensive family limousine with Windle, the chauffeur, and Chilli, the maid, motoring north towards the mountains from the summer heat of New York City. En route to Indian Stones, Aunt Sarah promotes Beth Calder as a matrimonial prospect for Aggie, mentioning a family scandal which prompts her nephew to exclaim: "And you want me to marry into this shambles!" He warns her (even in Latin) against thrusting prospective wives on him.

CHAPTER THREE

The antique automobile bumbled along through the countryside. Afternoon was replaced by early evening. In a town far to the north, they stopped for dinner. Nothing more was said about the match-making proclivities of Sarah Plum. Her nephew regaled her with a tale of certain events and customs which he had observed among the fire-worshipping natives of a place called, as he said, as she could catch it, Galumbolia.

The turn-off for Indian Stones was marked by a sign made of birch logs—a sign that had been there for twenty-two years—or a replica of the old sign. Birch rots pretty fast, Aggie thought, so it was probably a replacement. Nevertheless, it filled him with nostalgia, which surprised him, because his summers at the resort had been lonely. Sarah had done her best to compensate for his mother, who had died at the time of his birth, and his father, who had survived her by seven years. But nobody can make up for such destitution.

Route 665, where Windle swung the car, had been black—and tarry in the summer. Now it was cement. But the Indian Stones road was still unpaved. Hard gravel rained on the fenders. Mudguards, they'd called them in those days . . .

The luminous dial on his wrist pointed to ten o'clock. The car began climbing and climbing; the air fragrant with the scent of pine and a subliminal smell of near-by fresh water. They passed the Waite house and the Calder house—rambling, big, rustic, dimly familiar. They swung into the straight stretch between Upper and Lower Lake, past the first and last holes of the golf course and the club house. Its racoon roof-jumble rose weirdly against the stars. Dr. Plum remembered the rooms in it, and the cellars under it, where he and some other kids had played pirate and Count of Monte Cristo—cellars of a hotel which had burned down. They'd built the club on the old foundations. And the date on the clubhouse, in scroll woodwork above the fieldstone supporting the porch, was 1885. There had been people—well-to-do people—at Indian Stones for many generations.

The road forked and forked again. Headlights touched calm water and swung away. They were nearing the drive of "Rainbow Lodge." Every house here was a "lodge." He turned toward his aunt.

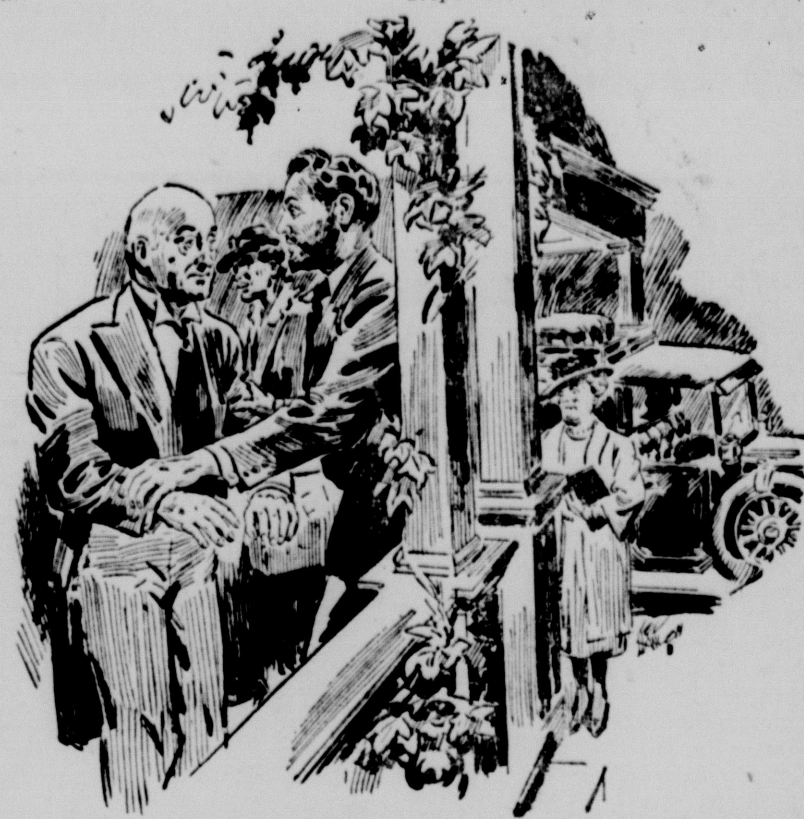

"I'm awake," Sarah said. "I've been watching you watch." She spoke with some difficulty.

"Your sore throat's worse!" he said.

was the size of a summer hotel. On its front porch, beside the portico, stood old John, the butler who had been in Sarah's service a quarter of a century before, when Aggie was a noisy young master of the place.

The professor leaned out of the car and seized the old man's arms. "John! You haven't changed a particle! Sarah didn't tell me you'd be here! This is great! And—look, Sarah's feeling badly—so you and Chilli get her inside, first. I'll take care of the bags, with Windle."

"It's mighty nice to see you, Mr. Aggie," he peered at the professor with the pathetic eagerness of the family retainer who has missed the steps between a childhood and a

"It's mighty nice to see you, Mr. Aggie," said old John, peering at the professor he knew as a boy.

"Nonsense! It's not a sore throat, anyway. Not exactly. My jaws feel stiff, that's all."

"We'll get you inside, Sarah." There was affection and worry in his tone. "Then—if you like—I'll go for Dr. Davis. He's up here now, I suppose?"

"Of course. We've all been coming on the twentieth—for generations. Your father did. Our father did before him. George is here—but I don't need a doctor. I need a little rest—that's all. I've worried myself sick for four years refusing to summer with me—at the last moment. This is just let-down."

Aggie reached over and took her firm, large hand. He squeezed it. "You're a honey, Sarah! Wozy-brained—but your heart's all right." Lights glimmered through the trees. The car turned into a foliated tunnel. Sarah's cottage maturity. He could not seem to reconcile the bearded man with a memory which slowly faded from his eyes. He went down to aid Sarah, glancing back at Aggie. The pair, harried by Chilli, walked into the house. Windle began unsnapping, unstrapping, unbuckling and uncovering.

Aggie left him at the chore. He stepped up on the big, shadowy veranda. The light over the front door was not burning; Sarah had entered through a side vestibule. In the gloom, he slid his hand along the railing to see if the initials he had carved long ago—and for which carving he'd had his ears boxed—were still legible in the wood. They were. He fingered them. A.T.P. Something in old John's eyes had started him thinking.

Success Tale: Girl Reporter to Sub - Deb

By ADELAIDE KERR

A balky elevator gave Eleanor Carroll the lucky break that launched her journalistic career—a career that led to her recent appointment as first woman assistant to the Dean of the Graduate School of Journalism of Columbia University.

Back in 1920, Eleanor, who had just been turned down for a job on the New York Evening Post, was waiting in its offices for an elevator that had stopped below, and reflecting darkly on the outlook for women in journalism. Her reflections were the darker, as she had spent the past year, after her graduation from Wellesley College, in bombarding the Post editor with free lance feature articles. A job on the Post had been her dream—and her dream had crashed around her.

No telling what might have happened to the Carroll career if a vice president of the Post had not passed at that moment and asked what caused the black looks. Eleanor told him, with punctuation. He offered her a job as his secretary and Eleanor, who had had six weeks of shorthand, took it. Eventually she was given a job as editor of the feature page.

After a brief fling at that she sailed for London on the salary she had saved. And luck stepped in again.

"I met an editor of the London Daily Express in a Fleet Street pub," Miss Carroll related in her roomy Columbia office the other day. "He offered me a job as reporter on the Daily Express, and I was there for two years. Besides that I did a lot of free lance articles for other publications on what a young girl thinks of soccer, tea drinking, etc. Those were wonderful years. But as you see a lot was due to luck."

After two years on the Daily Express, Miss Carroll returned to the United States. She got an M. A. at Columbia University, served seven years as associate editor of the Delineator, worked for another year as special assistant to Harry Hopkins in the WPA and in 1936 came to Columbia as associate professor of journalism.

Next year, only a few months after her appointment as assistant to the dean, Miss Carroll may be left in temporary charge of the School of Journalism if Dean Carl Ackerman takes a projected round-the-world trip to study the possibility of the free flow of postwar news.

Eleanor Carroll is a good looking woman—blue eyed, fresh skinned and possessed of a pleasant smiling manner.

In private life she is the wife of Hungarian born Dr. Endre K. Brunner, chief of the gynecology clinic at the New York University College of Medicine, now a commander in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Navy Reserve.

Miss Carroll likes the outlook for women in journalism much better than in 1920.

"With this war the traditional hostility toward women in newspapers went out the window," she said. "They have had a break they never had before. Women will have to work hard if they hold the gains they have made, but they can do it. They may not be able to keep the same jobs they held now. But the experience cannot be taken away and they can use it elsewhere."

Most wild mammals are farsighted. Notable exception are the baboons, which are near-sighted.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — One of the most recurrent rumors here over the years (at least eight of them) has been that Stephen T. Early, the President's secretary in charge of press relations, is on the verge of resigning.

There's reason for it. Steve himself refuses to discuss the matter with any one who might publish it. But intimate friends say very emphatically that he has been wanting to resign for nearly eight years.

Steve, now 55, has seen his three children grown from childhood to maturity since he has been on the White House executive staff. He has educated them. His salary is $10,000 a year, which may sound like a lot to some, but isn't in the big time in Washington. Living in Washington with a family and keeping up the necessary front commensurate with an important government position is a strain in far less inflated times than these.

If even half the rumors are true, Steve has been offered some mighty attractive civilian jobs in recent years. To many, the surprising thing is that he hasn't jumped at some of them before now. But to insiders and his intimates there's no particular mystery about it.

In the first place, Early is a good soldier. He proved that in World War I. He was originally lieutenant in a machinegun company, one of the most expendable fighting groups of the war, constantly under fire from the day it hit the front lines. He came out of the war an infantry captain. The point is that Steve served where he is ordered.

There never has been a time of stress (and when hasn't there been in President Roosevelt's 12 years?) when Steve would have deserted his post even for the greater rewards of civilian employment, unless his chief wholeheartedly and without any personal gain could give him the green light.

Now that we are deep in the midst of global war, Steve has had, more than ever, to push his personal ambitions and wishes for his family farther back on the shelf. As long as the President feels that he is needed and his post can't be adequately filled, Steve will stay on—because he is a good soldier and because he never wavers in his loyalty to the President.

One other factor makes it hard for Steve to sever old ties—sentiment.

Early is the last of the four persons in the secretariat who have been Mr. Roosevelt's most trusted intimates since even before he first entered the White House.

Louis Henry Howe, that little political genius who had so much to do with the President's ascent, was the first to be taken by death. Then Marvin H. McIntyre, the President's most trusted handy-man; and finally Marguerite A. ("Missy") Le Hand, a paragon of personal secretaries.

If Early goes now, as he might, F. D. R. will fight out his fourth term without any one of those who have worked closest and most harmoniously with him through most of his turbulent years.

MARCH OF DIMES APPEAL IN FULL SWING HERE NOW

Network of Committeemen Are Covering County for Special Contributions

The annual March of Dimes fund raising appeal Tuesday was in full swing here, Paul Van Voorhis, head of the campaign said.

Centralizing the appeal here will be the theme that the more money given to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the more power there will be to combat the disease.

While there is no known prevention for the disease, half the money contributed in Fayette County will stay here to help pay for treatment of the disease when it strikes people in the county. Not only do the contributions mean more power to combat the disease, but it means financial support for more research to learn the "why" of polio.

Collection boxes to be placed in business houses and restaurants are on the way here now, Van Voorhis said as he pointed out contributions are not limited to dimes. A network of committeemen are covering Washington C. H. as well as other towns in the county for special contributions. Organizations, city and county schools, churches and industries also are being contacted.

Committeemen now set up are: special gifts, Carroll Halliday; organizations, W. L. O'Brien; city schools, A. B. Murray; county schools, W. J. Hilly; military organizations, R. B. Tharp; Granges, Loren Hynes; churches, Rev. John K. Abernethy and industries, A. E. Weatherly.

MORE HIGHWAYS DRIFTED FULL DURING NIGHT

Snowplows Again Kept Busy
Throughout Night To Battle Drifts

Once more the state and county highway crews were called upon to battle snow Monday, throughout the night and Tuesday, and during the early part of the night, roads drifted full once more and in a great many instances autos and trucks stalled until relieved by snowplows or other means.

After nearly four inches of snow had fallen upon the ice foundation during Monday and Monday night, a drop in temperature rendered some of the highways just as bad as they have been at any time recently and numerous cars skidded into ditches, but so far as known no serious accidents occurred.

As result of the successive freezing, thawing, snow and rain, there is still a heavy coating of ice over the earth, and in some places here this ice is level with sidewalks, or even higher.

All of the schools were open in the rural areas and villages, Tuesday, except Bloomington, and it is understood school will be resumed there Wednesday if there is no radical change in the weather.

Most highways that were not scraped clean before the snow Tuesday, were ice coated and dangerous.

Sidewalks generally are still in dangerous condition, and many persons have been injured by falls on the glassy surface of the sidewalks, or from ice-covered steps.

Application of salt and cinders was resorted to in the up-town areas early Tuesday to dispose of the ice sheet, which it did in short order.

For five weeks, or since December 11, traffic has been hampered by snow and ice in the worst ordeal the public has ever experienced, and highway crews have been unable to handle the situation as they would like, due to insufficient equipment and
